

ROBERT DRAGO

Robert Drago is Professor of Labor Studies and Women's Studies at the Pennsylvania State University, a Professorial Fellow at the University of Melbourne, and moderates the work/family newsgroup on the internet (lsir.la.psu.edu/workfam). He holds a Ph.D. in Economics from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst. The author of four books and over 70 articles, his research concerns biases against caregiving in the workplace, working time, the value of work-family policies, and includes recent studies of working time flexibility and of college and university faculty, both funded by the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation. He is president for 2006 of the College and University Work/Family Association, a co-founder of the Take Care Net (takecarenet.org), the 2001 recipient of the R.I. Downing Fellowship from the University of Melbourne, serves on the board of the Berger Institute for Work, Family and Children, is a member of the Council on Contemporary Families and the International Association for Feminist Economics, and serves on the advisory board for the Ms. Foundation's Take Our Daughters and Sons to Work day. His latest book is Striking a Balance: On Work, Family and Life, forthcoming later this year from Dollars & Sense.

DANIELLE EWEN

Danielle Ewen is the Director of the Child Care and Early Education team at the Center for Law and Social Policy (CLASP). She works on federal and state issues around child care and early education, particularly the reauthorizations of the Child Care and Development Block Grant and Head Start. She has written extensively about the child care subsidy program and how it impacts low-income families, and is the author and co-author of numerous publications on state and federal policy, including All Together Now, a research report that examines the implementation of state pre-kindergarten programs in community-based child care settings.

Prior to joining CLASP, Danielle Ewen worked at the Children's Defense Fund as a Senior Program Associate in the Child Care and Development Division. Ms. Ewen was also the Assistant Director for the National Child Care Information Center and worked as a Policy Analyst at the US Department of Education in the Office of Migrant Education, where she worked on issues related to implementation of Chapter 1 programs, family literacy, bilingual education and evaluation.

She holds a Bachelor's Degree from the University of California at Berkeley and a Master's in Public Administration from Columbia University. She lives and works in Washington, DC.
